This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

My dear Mr. Winsor

I have just returned here and find your letter, soliciting a copy of my catalogue. It was some time sent you. But I wish to include a slip apologetic for some printers' omissions. You will get it in a day or two.

May I hope you will give it some attention, since it exhibits my plan of a college catalogue.

Have the goodness to say, whether if you were solicited by the editor of the Princeton review, you would write an extended notice of it, for his columns. of course, to be paid for. Yours, very respectfully,

Frederic Vinton.

PREFACE.

THE catalogue here presented differs from most others in consisting only of a list of topics alphabetically arranged. It is not meant to show whether we have a given author's book, unless under the topic upon which the book is written. The topic itself is the direct object; and looking there the student may expect to find titles of all the books, and parts of books, on that subject, belonging to the library. This index, then, is a sort of dictionary for many topics; naming the books which contain information sought; and the figures printed at the right of a title show the alcove and shelf where the book is located.

The analysis of volumes with a view to discover information not noticed on the title-page has been pushed so far (at least in design) as to include contributions not less than ten pages in length. It was meant that a student, sitting in his room, with this catalogue before him, may be able to determine what books to borrow, almost as if he were in the alcove where they stand. The wearisome, and often ineffectual search has been made for him; and the time it took may now be regarded as added to the length of student-life at Princeton.

In this minute dissection of books, some things have certainly escaped notice, and some have been misunderstood, from defective intelligence. Specialists will miss much which they expected from such a plan; and even the varying taste of readers will sometimes make them regret what is left out, in comparison with what they find. It must be remembered that this is a layman's catalogue, while professors are at home in their province. Errors of judgment are to be expected; but no labor seen to be due has been shrunk from. This, in fact, explains the long delay in publication.

This analysis, however, has not been extended among periodicals, delightful or important as their contents may be. Poole's Index has already done this for the literary serials of our century: and the like inestimable service for science seems incumbent on the Royal Society of London, whose grand catalogue of matter found in scientific periodicals since 1800, arranged under the names of the authors, needs only to be arranged under topics like our own.

In executing the plan sketched above, some inconsistencies may probably be charged on the librarian. It may be thought that many interesting localities are omitted in this alphabet, respecting which information certainly exists in the library. Crosby Hall, Lincoln's Inn, St. Paul's, the Tower, and the Abbey are spots of chief interest to every American in London. St. Peter's and the Parthenon are names dear to every cultivated mind. But as the names of cities to which these belong are familiar to everybody, it seemed better to bring these together, rather than to separate them. Geographical localities alone are recognized in this catalogue; and this may apologize to the students for placing Harvard College under Cambridge; and Yale College under New Haven.

It will be lamented by some, that when part of a book is referred to, the title of the volume from which the extract was drawn should not also be given, instead of merely naming the alcove and shelf where it stands. No doubt, that would have made our catalogue useful in other libraries; but it would have materially increased the cost to us.

A critic of part of this book has suggested that in the case of complicated articles standing under geographic names, as England, France, the United States, a schedule of the sub-topics should have been given to facilitate inquiry. It is, indeed, to be regretted that such a feature was not introduced at the beginning.

Inasmuch as varying phraseology is used by authors treating of the same topic, embarrassment was often felt in determining the proper word for a heading. In general, the most modest and familiar language has been chosen: as Birds, instead of Ornithology, Fossils, rather than Paleonology. Everywhere, usefulness has been preferred to any other quality.

An appendix has been added, of matter overlooked, or acquired meanwhile; and a manuscript appendix has been already begun, in which new matter will be entered as it may be received. Kept at the desk, this will enable the student to be always informed of all the library possesses on a given topic.

The present catalogue represents the contents of sixty thousand bound volumes, beside pamphlets. Whatever advantage may flow from printing it, is largely due to the intelligence and fidelity of the assistants employed. I could scarce have wished for greater.

PRINCETON, June, 1, 1884. FREDERIC VINTON.

Note. Part of the history of algebra has been given by Libri in his Histoire des sciences mathématiques en Italie, as well as by Hutton in his Tracts on mathematical subjects, and in his mathematical dictionary, as also by Montuela in his Histoire des mathématiques.

Note 2. In order to guide the choice of the student, a schedule of the merit of these algebraic works has been made by one of the mathematical professors. It will be perceived that a series of numbers has been attached to these titles, and the critic has pronounced his judgment by a single word or phrase. Thus:

Easy. 6, 31.
Excellent. 13, 26, 30, 41, 59, 62.
Good. 17, 27, 45, 52, 63.
Greatest works on the subject. 7, 32, 60.
Important. 16, 36, 39, 56.
Obsolete. 2, 3, 9, 29, 49, 50, 51.
Of historic interest. 1, 5, 18, 20, 28, 34, 42, 47, 48, 58, 66.

Note. Many important papers upon this mode of mathematical inquiry, exist in this library concealed in the collected works of mathematicians; as Bernouilli, Leibnitz, Newton. Many others have been printed only in the pages of the periodicals where they first appeared; as the Acta eruditorum (26.3594), and the Transactions of the Royal society of London. Part of the controversy on the invention of the calculus, may be seen in Collins' Commercium epistolicum (26.1600.45), and the Commercium mathematicum of Leibnitz and Bernouilli, (25.1588.11). References to these may be found in the article Infinitesimal calculus, of the Encyclopedia britannica.
